Jonathan Dean

'He who binds to himself a joy / Does the wingéd life destroy. / He who kisses the joy as it flies / Lives in eternity's sunrise' (William Blake). Blake's poetry is the inspiration behind the series of recent collages (2022) I am exhibiting.

Kanwal Dhaliwal

I am contributing in turning the tide of inhuman taboos towards the dark skin, equating it with evil in all sorts of cultural expressions in the Indian Subcontinent, mainly the North-West. Celebrating the dark native Indian beauty set in characters portrayed in classical Indian sculptures is the focus of this series.

Nicky Gabris

Nicky Gabris is a multidisciplinary artist who explores themes of nature, portraiture, and abstraction through the lens of personal experience. Her use of a dark palette creates a mood that draws the viewer in, inviting them to connect with the emotions and stories embedded in each piece.

Nick Hazzard

All these images were produced by artificial intelligence. But to generate them I had to create and enter text prompts, raising the question of who is actually responsible for this work. The AI has been trained using millions of images from the internet. That also raises the question of copyright. This technology is in its infancy. So what does all this mean for the future of art and artists?

Jenny Price

Jenny creates abstracted paintings inspired by the world around her. She translates emotions, stories and feelings into abstracted and semi abstract paintings. She is also inspired by living next to the Thames, and the impact water and changing landscapes and events can have on our emotions.
