

art to change your life

t r a n s f o r m a t i o n s

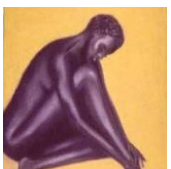

1-6 march 2022
*espaciogallery

Moich Abrahams

Moich enjoys combining spontaneity and playfulness. He is fascinated with both urban signs and foxes. He loves reinventing child-like expressiveness and central to this is the art of 'letting go' and 'not taking things personally'.

www.moichabrahams.co.uk

Vera Akotuah

I have been working with flat colour influenced by the works of David Hockney and Alex Katz. My works are strongly colour orientated with 'flat' colour being a theme throughout.

www.instagram.com/stylequeenva

Paul Butler

Initially inspired by the work of Terry Frost, Ben Nicholson, Bridget Reilly and Mark Rothko, I have found myself intrigued by the possibility of using simple shapes, colour and texture to create art. I enjoy experimenting with materials. I live in Essex but enjoy spending time in Cornwall.

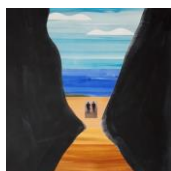

www.instagram.com/paulbutler64

Cherman

People say that some are born with a silver spoon in their mouth, but I was born with a pencil in my hand. That, along with my curiosity about history and social issues, made me see the graphic arts as a multidimensional pathway.

<https://chermanystore.com>

Jonathan Dean

These recent collages form part of a series inspired largely by visits to the Kent coast – pictures intended to celebrate openness, space, the interplay between sea, sky and land, between line, shape and colour. Using mainly cuttings from recycled paintings and collages led to some fresh and exciting juxtapositions of colour and texture.

www.instagram.com/jonathandeanpainting

Adrian Gibbs

After becoming a professional Ballet dancer and later West End Musical performer, later Pro.Photographer, (I always drew & painted throughout), I decided to change my career and dedicate my art to becoming a painter. Colour, light & shade, life experiences, avenues of expression.

adriangibb@gmail.com

Rosana Miracco

Everything that touches me is an inspiration to create art.

www.espaciogallery.com/rosana-miracco

Marianne Moore

Marianne's work is abstract oil on canvas. Using layering and moulding to create height, and furious scratching with a pallet knife to keep the paint moving, her works are active and vibrant, appearing to rip out of the canvas.

www.instagram.com/theartofmaz

Nick Munier

A lot of love flows into my artwork. I think that is why abstract art in general appeals to me so much, because the outcome is not fixed during the creative process. Painting allows me to escape from the world. I draw inspiration from many everyday visuals, colours, music, places and people. I've been lucky to have travelled extensively over the years.

www.instagram.com/munierart

Andreas Schöyen

Photography by Andreas Schöyen truly captures the beauty of one of Portugal's most spectacular areas; the Southern Region of Algarve. The photos show the stunning natural landscapes, culture and customs, beaches, and local architecture.

andreasschoyen@icloud.com

João Trindade

I want to meditate into futuristic cityscapes, geometric shapes and contrasting colours. All blurs into abstraction, balance, order and chaos. The works inundate the viewer with information, leaving a very personal and unique impression.

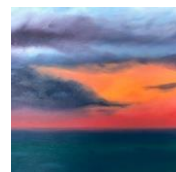

www.joaotrindade.com

Natalie Webb

Natalie strives to capture the essence of her subjects, with economy of line. The image is revealed by the way a viewer's brain perceives what is there and not there and fills in the gaps.

www.instagram.com/nataliewebbartist

Meg Wroe

Meg Wroe's paintings capture a sense of wonder in this beautiful world. She is concerned with the fragility of our ecosystem and air we breathe. At this time of climate crisis, the earth, sea and sky cry out.

www.instagram.com/meg.wroe

espaciogallery

159 Bethnal Green Road, London, E2 7DG

www.espaciogallery.com

@espaciogallery