

Piecework

An exhibition by South London Women Artists at Espacio Gallery

Curated by Jackie Brown, Pat Keay and Pia Randall-Goddard

Piecework: work paid for according to the amount produced, and not at an hourly rate, often associated with families working from home whilst raising children.

19th - 24th September 2013
Open daily 1-7pm
Tuesday 1-5pm

Private View: Thursday 19th September 6-9pm

South London Women Artists are pleased to be showcasing 22 of their artists at Espacio Gallery. Situated in the heart of the East End, an area of London rich in the history of the rag trade, this is a perfect location for an exhibition which explores the connection between piecework and feminist art practises. Selected as Parliament Partners for 2013, Piecework will run alongside other SLWA projects created for Parliament Week, the theme of which this year is Women and Democracy.

Evidence of piecework fills our lives, from the clothes we wear, to the jobs we take, or the repetitive stuff of domestic life we have to do every day to keep the world going round. The work, in a variety of media – film, sculpture, drawing, painting, printmaking and textiles, is a personal response to that experience.

Details of Piecework and events for Parliament week by SLWA can be found on the website.

Website: www.southlondonwomenartists.co.uk
Facebook: facebook.com/southlondonwomenartists
Twitter: @SLWArtists

ESPACIO GALLERY
159 Bethnal Green Road
London, E2 7DG